Adams landed for drill this Hotehkiss and gatling guns President Dole and a party of gentlemen sailed out to the vicinity of the stranded bark Gainsborough in the yacht Helene yesterday

Several schooners went to the bark Gainsborough to receive coal and other things from the wreck. The opinion along the waterfront is that Allen & Robinson will make a good thing out of their venture.

There was a little scrap aboard the steamer Claudine yesterday between a native and a Portuguese, in which the former came out second best. The native was half drunk, and called the dark-skinned Portuguese some very hard names, when the latter thought it time to "go at him." No one interfered, and the native was punished severely.

The barkentinelring and sailed today with a full cargo of sugar and other produce for San Francisco. The domestic produce was valued at $62,635,40 and the foreign produce at $157.50. The sugar was shipped as follows: F A Schaefer & Co, 8565 bags: C Brewer & Co, 8599 bags; Castle & Cooke, 268 bags. The Hawaiian Fruit & Packing Co, shipped 7s1 cases pineapple, valued at $1562.

When the pump well aboard the barkentine When the pump well aboard the barkentine W. H. Dimond was sounded last night, the water was found to be fourteen inches. It was pumped out, but this morning a leak was found at the water-line near the stern post between the 12 and 13 feet marks. The part of the cargo of sugar in the after part of the vessel was unloaded at Oceanic dock today so the leak could be sterned. Carl today, so the leak could be stopped. Capt. Nilson is not sure whether he will be able to sail tomorrow or not. The Diamond was about ready for sea.

HOW IT IS DONE.

The Middle Aged Man and His Mission or This Great Earth. A look of serious meditation rests upon the face of the middle aged man who stands at the intersection of two important thoroughfares and gazes in silence at the ground before him.

He is plainly but comfortably dressed; his features are bronzed, and his sunburned hands bear the marks of toil.

Citizens pass and repass, yet he heeds them not. The roar of traffic is all about him, but apparently he does not hear it. His thoughts are far away.

Who shall say that thoughts are not things? Who knows but that the processes of the mind leave lasting traces upon an environment now unseen, but as real as the visible and tangible thing we call matter, and that some day, when the veil is rent asunder and the spiritual eye looks forth upon a new universe, it will see in changeless forms the real and substantial results of those mental processes and- But the man is moving.

it thoughtfully. Then he steps forward.

There is a leisurely dignity in his movements that well may challenge the attention of the student of American institutions and move him to reflection upon the effects of those institutions upon the national character. He stoops again.

He places carefully upon the ground the object he has carried in his hand. Picking up an iron implement, he brings it down once, twice, thrice, upon the object. Then he straightens up, drops the implement of iron and resumes his contemplative gaze downward into the bowels of the earth.

He is an employee of the street department. He is laying a pavement.-Chicago

The Rattled Bridegroom.

A minister in Columbus says that women have more nerve than men as a rule. This, he says, is especially the case when it comes to marrying. Some time since he was called to marry a young couple in what might be called the aristocratic circle. The young man was very much excited, but was trying to put on a bold face for the emergency. To show that he was not frightened in the least he concluded to ask the minister if it was customary to kiss the bride. After stuttering for some time he finally broke out, "Is cussing kistomary?" The minister kindly informed him that it was not under the circumstances, and the young man was led to the altar like a lamb. - Mansfield Shield.

"Jane, if any one calls, tell them I am not at home.

"If you think I'm going to tell a lie take. You must tell them yourself."-
